NHIA to host 2021 Annual Conference virtually, April 19-22, 2021

Alexandria, Va. (November 2, 2020) –The National Home Infusion Association (NHIA) will be hosting the 2021 Annual Conference in a digital format, April 19-22, 2021.

In order to keep attendees and communities safe during the COVID-19 pandemic, NHIA has converted the 2021 Annual Conference – the premier conference for the home and specialty infusion industry - to a fully virtual event.

“During the public health emergency (PHE), home and specialty infusion services are more critical than ever. We’re committed to keeping attendees connected and informed while they continue their work to help patients remain at home. Nothing replaces in-person interaction, but we are confident the NHIA team can provide the same high-quality education and opportunities for engagement attendees expect from the annual conference,” said NHIA’s Chief Operating Officer, Jennifer Charron.

Home and specialty infusion therapy professionals, including pharmacists, nurses, dietitians, reimbursement specialists, technicians, business development professionals, consultants, owners, and executives will come together for three exciting days of learning and networking through an innovative, online platform.

In addition to educational programming that allows attendees to choose from over 50 sessions accredited for continuing education (CE) credits, home and specialty infusion professionals can register for this year’s Advanced Compounding Practice Series – a program designed for experienced practitioners. NHIA has engaged with industry experts to speak on a variety of advanced topics including stability study analysis, the role of technology and robotics in the future of compounding, and more.

As a precursor to the conference, we encourage home infusion professionals take part in NHIA’s first-ever Global Congress on Home Infusion Therapy (GCHIT), being held on April 19, 2021.

“NHIA is excited to host the first Global Congress on Home Infusion Therapy. This event will offer an opportunity for clinicians and providers of home infusion therapy services across the world to share experiences, ideas, accomplishments, and challenges associated with the delivery of infused medications in the home setting. We know this will be a rewarding and insightful program for all who attend,” said NHIA President & CEO Connie Sullivan, BSPHarm.

Attendees can register for GCHIT as a standalone event or as part of their NHIA 2021 Annual Conference registration.

Registration for the 2021 Annual Conference is now open. For more information and registration, visit <http://bit.ly/nhia-2021-conference>.

*NHIA is a trade association that represents companies that provide infusion therapy to patients in their homes and companies that manufacture and supply infusion and specialty pharmacy products. Infusion therapy involves patient-specific compounded medications, supplies, and a range of pharmacy, nursing, and other clinical services for delivering care to patients in the home setting.
