Company Background

CitusHealth was founded in 2015 by Melissa Kozak, RN, and healthcare IT veteran Shahid Shah to address a growing challenge in home-based care: keeping patients, caregivers, and clinicians truly connected. Drawing on Melissa's firsthand experience in home infusion, they built a digital platform designed to streamline communication, eliminate manual processes, and improve care coordination across the continuum.

Today, CitusHealth is trusted by leading home infusion and specialty pharmacy providers nationwide. The platform offers secure messaging, digital forms, app-less e-signatures, and real-time collaboration tools, enabling care teams to reduce delays, improve patient and staff satisfaction, and simplify documentation.

Unlike traditional portals or fragmented communication methods, CitusHealth centralizes all interactions and integrates seamlessly with existing systems, so providers don't have to choose between connectivity and efficiency. From intake to delivery and follow-up, CitusHealth empowers faster response times, clearer communication, and better outcomes.

As home infusion continues to grow and evolve, CitusHealth remains committed to solving real-world challenges with practical, intuitive tools that help clinicians stay focused on what matters most: delivering timely, high-quality care.

Product & Services Overview

CitusHealth is a purpose-built digital health platform for home-based care providers. Designed to replace manual processes and disconnected communication tools, it offers a single, streamlined solution for secure messaging, documentation, and patient engagement.

"Providing our patients with CitusHealth enhances our ability to communicate in a timely and effective way; provides 24/7 access to care, service and advice, and reduces reliance on labor intensive and inefficient processes." - Robert Calway, MHCA, BS, MT(ASCP), Chief Operating Officer, New England Life Care

Used across home infusion, specialty pharmacy, ambulatory infusion, home health, hospice, and palliative care, the platform empowers providers to coordinate care more effectively and respond faster to patient needs. CitusHealth's messaging and video supports HIPAA-compliance, and other key features include app-less electronic signatures, customizable digital forms, and real-time alerts: everything care teams need to reduce delays, minimize errors, and improve continuity.

CitusHealth also supports multilingual communication, broadcast messaging, and on-demand education to ensure patients and caregivers stay informed, engaged, and confident in their care. For staff, seamless integration with EHRs and pharmacy systems reduces administrative burden and enables documentation to flow directly into the patient record.

By centralizing communication and automating workflows, CitusHealth helps providers deliver more connected, patient-centered care, improving outcomes, satisfaction, and operational efficiency across the board.

Today, when you go to your doctor and need to be referred to a specialist (e.g., for sleep apnea), your doctor sends a fax (yes, in 2024, 90% of provider to provider communication is a 1980s fax). These are often converted into 20+ page PDFs, with handwritten (doctor's handwriting!) notes, in thousands of different formats. The problem is so complex that a person has to read it, type it up, and manually enter your information. Tennr built RaelM™ (7B-trained on 4M+ documents) to read these docs, talk to your doc to ensure nothing is missed, and text you to help schedule your appointment so you can get better, faster.
